Edward Pleads For An Understanding By His People After Decision

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(P)—King Edward's abdication was officially announced today in the House of Com-

The announcement was made by Capt. Edward Algernon Fitzroy, speaker of the House of Commons. Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin prefaced the announcement by telling the members he had "a message from His Majesty the King signed by his own hand.'

King Edward's words, in renouncing the British throne, the speaker read, were:

"I have determined to renounce the throne." "After long and anxious consideration I have determined to renounce the throne to which I succeeded on the death of my father and I am now communicating this, my final and irrevocable decison. "Realizing as I do the gravity of this step, I can only hope that I shall have the understanding of my peoples in the decision I have taken and the reasons which have led me to take it.

Burden Heavy

I will not enter now into my private feeling but I would beg that it should be remembered that the burden which constantly rests upon the shoulders of a sovereign is so heavy that it can only be borne in circumstances different from those in which I now find my-

"I conceive that I am not overlooking the duty that rests on me to place in the forefront of public interest, when I declare that I am conscious that I can no longer discharge this heavy task with efficiency or with satisfaction to myself.

Bachelor King Chose Love To Ruling Over Great British Empire

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(P)—King Edward of England abdicated his ancient, mighty throne today.

He will marry Wallis Warfield Simpson as man, not

Albert Frederick Arthur George, the tall- 40-yearold Duke of York, will rule over the 495,000,000 subjects of the greatest empire on the earth. Edward, said a report received by the Exchange Telegraph Agency, intends to leave the country, probably tomorrow night. There was no indication where he would meet Mrs. Simpson or when they will marry. In "a message from His Majesty the King, signed by his own hands," Captain Edward Algernon Fitzroy, speaker of the House of Commons, announced the abdication to a House of Commons in which tension and hysteria were breathing, living things. Around the globe, through sundown and dawn, to those who bear allegiance to England's king, flashes this message from their sovereign:

"After long and anxious consideration, I have determined to renounce the throne to which I succeeded on the death of my father, and I now am communicating this, my final and irrevocable decision.

In that epochal moment of eight centuries, the Commons, the people and the empire saw their government victorious in a tremendous, constitutional struggle with a monarch who reigned for less than a year.

SECRETARY WALLACE PROMISES FARMERS BETTER PROGRAM

GREATEST ECONOMIC SECUR ITY FOR TILLERS OF SOIL IS SOUGHT

By PAUL D. SHOEMAKER Associated Press Farm Editor. PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 9.—(P)

Secretary of Agriculture Wal lace promised the American farmer a better program than the outlawey Triple A today and declared greater economic security for those who live off the soil is the objective of the administra-

Addressing the eighteenth annual meeting of the American Farm bureau federation, the secretary said: "You may have heard the idea advanced that the agricultural adjustment act should be re-enacted; that the program carried out under its original provisions was the hest program agranged." ried out under its original provisions was the best program agriculture ever had. But good as that program was, we want to see it improved upon. A better program can and will be built."

Attainment of the administration's objective, the secretary said, centers around some method of controlled production, crop insurance, the ever normal granary and ther subjects essential to agricultural welfare,

"Crop insurance," the cabinet member asserted, "would be a valuable supplement to any production adjustment program that happened to be in effect, To assume it would be a complete substitute for production adjustment in a second for production adjustment in a series of years of normal weather would be a mistake.

"If and when normal weather

"If and when normal weather returns, farmers will find that storage in the bins will not be sufficient in itself to take care of their surplus problems. They will find that storage in the bins must be supplemented with greatly increased storage in the soil. In that kind of a situation, the welfare of the farmer and the nation will require that the farmers again have nower equal to that which they quire that the farmers again have power equal to that which they once had under the agricultural adjustment act and of which they were deprived by decision of the U. S. supreme court."

The plan for crop insurance, as outlined by Mr. Wallace would provide for the accumulation of reserve supplies of commodities during the good crop years, to be drawn upon in time of scarcity by farmers who had paid their insurance premiums in kind. Co-operators could take their benefits in kind or in cash.

As part of her share of the World War loot, Italy was given the Dodacanese, the twelve islands in the Aegean which had formerly belonged to Greece and Turkey. How she has fortified these, as part of her plan for dominating the Mediterranean, is a matter for the news columns, and not for a Sunday School lesson. But the fact that the Island dominating the Mediterranean, is a matter for the news columns, and not for a Sunday School lesson. But the fact that the Island of Patmos is one of these islands is of interest to all the millions who this week study the Book of The Revelation, which was written on the little island, where the author was a prisoner, having been exiled thither under the Roman persecution of Christians.

While the folk who make a puzzlebook out of the Bible will revel in this Lesson in the most puzzlebook out of the Bible will revel in this Lesson in the most mysterious book of the Canon, finding in it all sorts of prophecies about present conditions, the ordinary reader will be content to get a firm grip on the geography of the Book, and its major meaning.

A visit To Patmos.

A visit To Patmos.

As preparation for my book, "Bible Lands Today," I, of course, visited the Island of Patmos. In fact, Admiral Bristol sent me there on an American destroyer, since the place may ordinarily be reached only by a weekly boat from the Island of Rhodes. The official reception by the Italian officials consumed time that I could have better used for more important purposes. The Italians are not popular with the resident Greeks, so relationship with them is not the best approach to the people. Had not an American exile from Texas attached himself to me as interpreter I would have got far less out of my visit. He would take no fee; but, instead, he gave me at parting an antique vase from Carthage, with sponges still attached, which the Greek sponge fishermen had drawn up from the sea. How homesick that man was for Texas! John could hardly have yearned more ardently for his beloved Ephesus.

Patmos is a little island, about

John could hardly have yearned more ardently for his beloved Ephesus.

Patmos is a little island, about twenty-five miles off the shore of Asia Minor at Ephesus. It comprises two hills and a valley. In the latter, the people, mostly sponge fishermen, have their homes. The ground is sterile and the water-supply is scant. On the eastern hill is an ancient monastery of the Greek Orthodox Church, a varitable fortress. For centuries Patmost, with its snug harbor between the two hills, was a haven for pirates. In the vicis-situdes of Mediterranean life, the island has seen rough times. In Roman days it was a penal colony.

Monks showed me a vellum manuscript of the Gospel of Mark, dating back to the eighth century. Having in mind the modern "red letter Testaments." I was struck by the fact that in this beautifully illuminated volume all the words of Jesus were inscribed in gold. As for the monastery's treasures, chiefly vestments. They proudly told me that when their highest ecclesiastical official pays them an annual visit he is robed in a hundred thousand dollars' worth of vestments.

The only real religious spirit I and diffed in the community was dred thousand dollars' worth of vestments.

The only real religious spirit I could find in the community was exhibited by an old monk who kept the rocky cave—now a chapel—in which St. John is supposed to have lived during his exile; He even shows the fetters that bound the prisoner!

posed to have lived during his exile; He even shows the fetters that bound the prisoner!

A Homesick Saint.

Barren Patmos is a stimulus to the imagination. It is easy to picture "St. John the aged," sitting on one of the crags of the island, peering toward the mainland where lay the beloved Ephesus that had his heart. At even-tide the waters would be "a sea of glass." Small wonder that, as a sea-girt prisoner, he could envisage a better world in which there would be "no more sea."

Only twenty-five miles away—so near, and yet so far—lay the Ephesus for which he was homesick, one of the great centers of the ancient world. There was his work, and there were his friends. And beyond Enhesus lay the other six cities that went to make up "The Seven Churches of Asia."

Readers of this difficult book need to get, first of all, a sense of geographical reality. Patmos was not a mood, a dream place, but a rocky reality, with all the rigors that Rome well knew how to impose upon her prisoners. And there was notining mystical about the Seven Churches. They were real cities, so lying as to be a natural circuit for a religious overseer. John knew them every one. He was familiar with their streets, and he treasured in his heart the names of the Christians in each. It was with a shepherd's care that he wrote to them, in the midst of their persecutions.

Like the woman who said, "I thought Jerusalem was in heaven; to them, in the midst of their persecutions.

Like the woman who said, "I thought Jerusalem was in heaven; I did not know that you could go there;" so many persons read this message to Ephesus, Smynra, Philadelphia, Pergamum, Sardis, Thyatria and Laodicea as if the churches were purely spiritual. I can testify that they are real places, for I have visited them every one—and the trip is an adventure that would stand out in any traveller's memory. I long to go again.

any traveller's memory. I long to go again.

A Book Of Mystery.

When we have grasped the basic fact that this Book of the Revelation was written by a real man, a prisoner on a real island, to Christians dwelling amidst a wave of terrible persecution in real cities on the neighboring mainland, we are ready to proceed with the admission that much of it is difficult, if not impossible, to understand. Most of it is in code, to which

"This direct savings," he explained, "results from the refinancing program of the farm credit administration, which now holds approximately 40 per cent of the total farm real estate mortgage debt in the United States."
Myers said, however, hat subsidied interest rates for agriculture should be confined to the emergency period.

FARM TENANCY IS EXPECTED BE BIG

South America last month set up a special committee headed by Secretary Wallace to devise a long term program to meet the prob-lem of farm tenancy, which he termed "a challenge to national action."

CONGRESS PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(P)—
Predicting farm tenancy would be "one of the vital problems of the new congress." Chairman Marvin Jones (D-Tex) of the house agriculture committe urged committee members today to study the subject carefully before congress convenes in January.

A bill by Jones and Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) to finance farm purchases by tenants failed of passage in the last session.

President Roosevelt asked them to work on legislation for next session, and just before leaving for South America last month set up a special committee headed by "The president has urged that the committee continue its work along these lines," he wrote.

TESTIMONY ENDS IN MURDER TRIAL MULESHOE COURT

STATE WILL ASK DEATH PENALTY FOR KILLING EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO

MULESHOE, Dec. 9.—(P)—Testimony was concluded in the murder trial of John Teal in 65th district court at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and summations of attorneys were expected to be opened at 2:30 p. m.

In closing rebuttal testimony, the state aimed at what it considered discrepancies in estimony of the control of the court.

The will of Mrs. Leis Crowley, deceased, was admitted to probate Monday by C. E. McWilliams, county judge. T. A. Crowley was named independent executor of the estate.

Teal testified his mind "went blank" after Miss Monts told him that she preferred unwedded re-lations with Lee Cooper to mar-ried life with Teal.

Cooper, now a bronzed Cochran county rancher, emphatically tes-tified this morning that he had had no improper relations with Miss Monts. He declared further that the young woman's reputa-ton for chastity was good. He termed the teacher, whom he once termed the teacher, whom he once had courted, "a perfect woman."

The defendant had testified his mind cleared when he heard a door slam as Onieta McCarty, 12, now Mrs. Charles Crutchfield of Dacoma, Okla., ran from the McCarty home.

Mrs. Crutchfield, returned to the stand by the state, testified that when she ran from the residence after hearing two shots she left open the door and that there was no screen door to slam.

The state will ask a 64th district court jury to convict Teal of murder and to sentence the machinist, who had more than 17 years of fugitive freedom, to death in the electric chair, District Attorney Dean sald.

empire will have sorrowing hearts.

Edward was our Prince Charming, he was our king—tomorrow will he be our martyr.

No other king could be so modern, so democratic and yet so royal. If he leaves this country England will have lost a force that could have raised this old empire to new heights of achievement—here in the old mother country as well as in the new-born dominions where Edward is king.

Fingland will have lost a force that could have raised this old empire to new heights of achievement—here in the old mother country as well as in the new-born dominions where Edward is king, too, by his own right in each of them.

And as with the self-governing dominions, so with the people of those dominions.

To many of us it will be difficult ever to feel that Edward, who was the Prince of Wales to us, as anything but a king.

Since those great forces of government, which even women's intuition cannot understand, forced Edward from his throne, some-the council voted at that time unanimously to continue the activities of the organization for another year.

OVER-TIME PERIOD PLAYED FAIRFIELD IN SECOND CONTEST

Corsicana High Cagers Tuesday night blasted open their season with a doublewin over Wortham Bulldogs and Fairfield Eagles on the junior high gym. The Bengals, using a flock of substitutes, defeated the Bulldogs, 30-10, in the curtain-raiser attraction and then nosed out the Eagles, 28-26, in an over-time

Eagles, 28-26, in an over-time period game.

Fairfield led the Bengal loopers throughout the game and only a sensational, fighting and determined band of players turned the tide in the closing minutes and pulled through to victory. With five minutes to play, the Tigers were five points behind. Rallying, the Gardnermen tied the count at 21-all with two minutes and 40 with two minutes and 40 ls to play. Each scored a 21-all with two minutes and 40 seconds to play. Each scored a free toss to make it 22-all with one minute to play. When the gun fired at the end of the regular playing time, the quintets were deadlocked at 24-all with the spectators in an uproar of excited cheering.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR WORKERS

King Edward, on his re-cent trip through Wales to see the industrial devastation there, insisted finally on seeing the ruins of the great iron and steel works at Dowlais, which had once employed 9,000 men. He looked at the dismantled works, talked to the ragged groups of sen ided steel workers and idle coal miners who had produced the fuel for those plants and then said:

"These people brought here by these works. Some kind of employment must be found for them."

In these simple words the British King stated a principle rather new in the world, but now being adopted by all the industrial nations—the responsibility of industry, and of society as a whole, for stranded workers formerly left to shift for themselves.

Society at last begins to recognize its obligation to conserve people as well as modern society there is even a sort of property right in

From such rude facts come many social, economic lions. and political expedients enabling a shaken industrial society to carry on.

"UNFAIR TO LIST-ENERS."

Most listeners, perhaps, take radio as it is, just as they take the weather, enduring or avoiding what they don't like and appreciating the good, and not trying to do anything about Many others grumble at defects and abuses, but let it go at that, realizing that although American radio programs at their worst are indefensible, yet at their best they are the finest in the world.

At last, though, there seems to be a popular crusade in this field. Local county officers were advised Wednesday afternoon that the owner of an abandoned car found on the highway last week had not been heard from or seen by relatives at Houston for several days and apprehension was felt that he might have been the victim of foul play.

The abandoned automobile was towed into Corsicana on orders of Deputy Sheriff J. M. Westbrook after it was found. Numbers of the car, denoting it came from Harris county, Houston, were forwarded to the sheriff's department at Houston and a sister of the owner of the car, R. K. Killough, telephoned Deputy Sheriff Walter Hayes Wednesday afternoon that nothing had been heard from her brother in several days and voiced apprehension that he may have met with an accident or foul play.

There was nothing about the abandoned car to indicate anything amiss, it was reported, and local officers at the time it was found were of the opinion it had been stolen and abandoned.

COLLIN STREET BAKERY SHIPS PRODUCT TO MANY FOREIGN COUNTRIES .

For more than a thing century a Corsicana firm has been acting as an aide to Santa Claus, and in doing it have built up an international reputation, and a business that keeps a goodly staff occupied through all the months of the year.

Back in the year 1900, W. T. McElwee and A. Weidmann, owners of the Collin Street Bakery, ear of the Collin Street Bakery, began their experiments with fruit-cake manufacture, and each wear saw them with a slightly carry that the still lacked hand bers of the Collin Street Bakery, began their experiments with fruit-cake manufacture, and each year saw them with a slightly varied recipe that resulted in a quality product, but still lacked something of the perfection desired by the makers. In 1912, after twelve years of arduous effort, they finally arrived at the recipe for "DeLuxe" fruit cake, and then started to work.

Orders Start Early.

By mid-summer orders for the cakes begin to arrive and these must be carefully filed and arrangements made to ship each parcel so that it will reach its destination at the proper time. Then early in October the first of many batches of the cakes must be baked for early shipments to India, Japan, and other distant points. By the time these are out of the way, shipments must go out to other nations not so distant, and so the process continues up to a few days before Christmas.

Christmas. . "Don't ask me about the num-"Don't ask me about the number of pounds we put out each season for you wouldn't believe me," was the answer Mr. McElwee gave recently to an inquiry. But the shipping records reveal that in addition to large shipments to every state in the union cakes have been ordered sent this year to Venezuela and Trinidad, year to Venezuela and Trandaz, British West Indies, in South America, Japan, England (the home of plum pudding), Germany Sweden, Hungary, India, and other

ELDER DAUGHTER OF NEW KING-TO-BE EDUCATED FOR QUEENLY ROLE

By the Associated Press LONDON, Dec. 10.-Fair-haired little Princess Elizabeth perhaps cared more today for her pet pony and a dog named "Yorky" than for the turn of events that projected here into the limelight.

With her mother, the Duchess of York, and her little sister, Princess

Margaret Rose, Elizabeth continued making shorts trips from her Piccadilly home about London and to Windsor, unaware of the meaning of the excitement about her. The Princess' regal manner and loveliness have endeared her to all subjects of the crown. The death of King George V, her grandfather. placing her third in the line of succession, served to accentuate the public concern over her welfare. For the decade of her life, her education has been designed to equip her for the role of queen and considered the matter of her preparedness. The Duchess of York, when Elizabeth barely was above the toddling stage, pleaded the little girl be sent to a private school where she Queen Mary, her grandmother, undertook to teach her etiquette and diplomatic convention.

Once Elizabeth attempted, so the story goes, to make use of public favor to her own advantage, only to be given a lesson in behavior by Queen Mary, with whom she was lattending the theater.

The imperious little miss insisted on standing and was admonished to sit down on pain of being sent "I can't be sent home," was the princess' retort. "Think of all the people outside waiting to see me." Another time she attempted to trade on her high birth. A nurse told her to do something she did not want to do and when the nurse insisted, Elizabeth froze her with the reminder: "Royalty speaking." Presidential Ships

"Windfall" Tax Is Upheld By Court Indiana Thursday

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—(*?)—
Federal Judge Robert C. Baltell of the Southern Indiana district court upheld today the validity of the "windfall tax" passed by congress to levy on tax money rejounded to processors after the supreme court declared the agricultural adjustment act unconstitutional.

The "windfall tax" was attacked by Kingan and company, an In-diapanolis packing concern which alleged it would be required to pay $900,000 on refunds of $2,543,-832 received after the supreme court's ruling on the AAA.

Brief Cold Wave Promised Texas Tonight, Friday

DALLAS, Dec. 10.—(P)—A brief cold wave will sweep southward through Texas tonight and tomorrow, the United States Weather Bureau forecast.

Dr. J. L. Cline, meteorologist in charge of the bureau here, said weather would be much colder in the southeast portion of the state tonight, and even more chilly tomorrow. He said temperatures in the north portion would be between 26 and 32 degrees.

He said he expected frost to-night far southward over the central part of Texas. The fore-cast was for rising temperatures in the north part of Texas to-morrow as the chill swept toward morrow as the chill swept toward the gulf.

Heavy rains deluged South and East Texas during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a. m. today. Houston reported 1.84 inches, Port Arthur 1.02 and Galveston 1.90. Amarillo reported the state's lowers to est temperature today with a minimum of 30 degrees.

Small Craft Warning,
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 10.—(F)—
The United States Weather Bureau here today issued a warning for Texas as follows:
"Small craft warning ordered 8:45 a. m. Texas coast, Port Arthur to Brownsville. Fresh to occasionally strong northerly winds this afternoon and tonight."

"The Bank Said,

"Now we can go ahead with our plans. I showed the Bank our financial statement and current orders; they liked our prospects for new business and agreed that things are looking better in our line. So they approved the application for our loan."

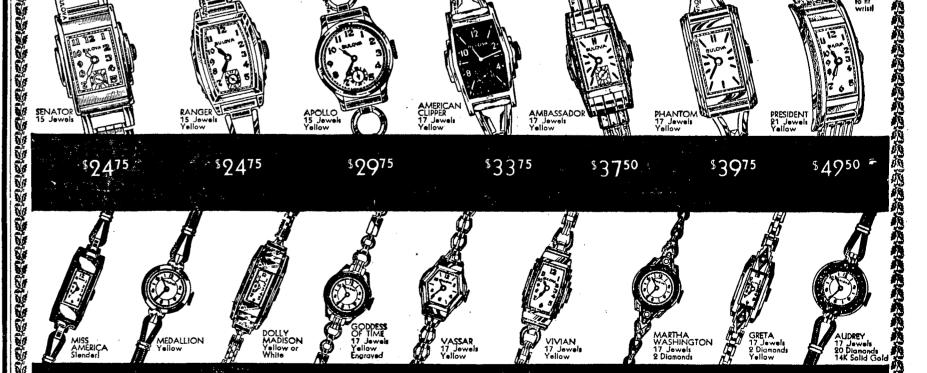

This bank is always glad to make loans. Naturally, since it is lending its depositors' money, it must be satisfied that the loan is in accordance with sound banking practice.

every step. Delay or contrariness on the part of any one would tie the entire scheme into a comknot.

Accession Council,
To facilitate the accession of a new king, it would be necessary in London to form an "ac-cession council," which in actual-ity would consist of the privy council plus a number of public officials, such as the lord mayor officials, such as the lord mayor of the city of London.

The new king then would be presented to this council, customarily ending the formality with a short address pledging devotion to the empire and its people.

The following day the new king would be proclaimed by heralds. Dressed in picturesque medieval garb, they would read ceremonitously the proclamation document from four places in the capital—St. James' palace, Charing Cross, Temple Bar and the Royal Exchange in the city of London.

The coronation of the new king might follow at any time after his accession.
